• Institutional Racism: Refers to the discriminatory policies and practices within organizations and institutions; leads to advantages for those in the majority group and often leads to discrimination, oppression, and disadvantage for groups that are not in power.

• Systemic Racism: Ongoing racial inequalities that are maintained by societal standards and policies that reinforce inequities between groups. Systemic racism is maintained by the current social, economic, and political systems in our society.

• Anti-racism: Actively supporting antiracist policies and ideas; Actively working to identify and oppose racism and change the policies and behaviors that perpetuate racism; Requires self-awareness and constant self-examination.
Racial Trauma

The cumulative effects of racism on an individual’s physical and mental health. Exposure to racism and discrimination has been linked to increased feelings of anxiety, depression, and suicidal ideation.

What is your perspective on the state of the field as it relates to addressing racial stress and trauma in therapeutic spaces, schools, and classrooms?
Intersectionality is “a theoretical framework for understanding how aspects of a person’s social and political identities (e.g. gender, sex, race, class, sexuality, religion, disability, physical appearance, height, etc.) combine to create unique modes of discrimination and privilege” (Wikipedia)

Coined by Kimberlé Crenshaw, Esq.

Systems of power and oppression overlap and compound, creating further burdens and issues for students.

Think: How do your identities give you more or less power and privilege?

Intersectionality is a lens through which you can see where power comes and collides, where it locks and intersects. It is the acknowledgement that everyone has their own unique experiences of discrimination and privilege.
